The Dahiya doctrine is a military strategy put forth by the Israeli general Gadi Eizenkot that pertains to asymmetric warfare in an urban setting, in which the army deliberately targets civilian infrastructure, as a means of inducing suffering for the civilian population, thereby establishing deterrence. The doctrine is named after a southern suburb in Beirut with large apartment buildings which were flattened by the Israel Defense Forces (IDF) during the 2006 Lebanon War. Israel has been accused of implementing the strategy during the Gaza War.

Operation “Cast lead”
In 2009 Israel has uninterruptedly bombed the Gaza Strip during 3 weeks from the sky, from earth and from the sea.

Officially the bombardment was on retaliation to the shots of missiles from the Strip by Hamas, but in reality it was an electoral operation orchestrated by the executive members of the Kadima party, also favoured by the presidential elections void in the USA.

Break the siege of Gaza

Richard Goldstone and his commission delivered his rapport to the Human Rights Council of the UN on 29 September 2009

- The intensified blockade on the Gaza Strip imposed on June 2007 is beginning its sixth year
- Gaza is one of the most densely populated regions in the world (over 4,500 people per sq. km).
 - 34% of Gaza's workforce, including over half its youth, is unemployed.
 - 44% of Gazans are food insecure and about 80% are aid recipients.
 - 2011, the GDP per capita was almost 17% below the equivalent figure in 2005, before the last Palestinian elections.
 - In 2011 less than one truckload of goods per day exited Gaza, less than 3% the average amount of exports during the first half of 2007.
 - 35% of Gaza's farmland and 85% of its fishing waters are totally or partially inaccessible due to Israeli imposed restrictions.
 - Since June 2010, 73% of UN reconstruction projects submitted to the Israeli authorities have been approved; dozens of other projects have been pending approval for an average of 18 months.
 - A severe fuel and electricity shortage results in outages of up to 12 hours a day.
 - Some 90 million litres of untreated and partially treated sewage are dumped in the sea each day.
 - Over 90% of the water from the Gaza aquifer is unsafe for human consumption without treatment.
 - 85% of schools in Gaza run on double shifts.
 - Some 71,000 new housing units are required to cover current housing needs.
 - Since the intensification of the blockade in 2007, at least 172 Palestinian civilians have been killed and 318 injured while working in tunnels between Gaza and Egypt.
 - During this period, nearly 2,300 Palestinians have been killed and 7,700 injured by Israeli forces, about two thirds of them during the "Cast Lead" offensive. Over a quarter (27%) of all Palestinian fatalities were women and children.
 - Since June 2007, 37 Israelis have been killed and 380 injured in attacks launched from Gaza, 40% of whom were civilians.

GAZA 2014: operation "Protective Edge"

2009 - 2014 DAMAGE COMPARISON

UNOSAT had analysed damage to the Gaza Strip infrastructures in 2009 following Operation Cast Lead (2008-2009). Since similar methodologies were used in both 2009 and 2014, a comparison of the assessment results is possible. However, as the 2008-2009 conflict was assessed with lower resolution (2m) imagery, only the more severe damage was visible, and thus the comparison of the two resulting datasets utilized only the severely damaged and destroyed classes from 2009 and 2014.

Comparison of the two time periods indicates that the 2014 conflict was much more destructive in terms of damage to buildings than the 2008-2009 conflict. The 2008-2009 conflict resulted in a total of 2,852 destroyed or severely damaged buildings detected by UNOSAT, while for 2014 the figure is 10,326. Even accounting for the possible error introduced by the reduced resolution imagery used to analyse the 2008-2009 conflict, this represents a relatively large increase in detected damage. Spatial distribution of the damage is also much more widespread from the 2014 conflict when compared to the 2008-2009 conflict. In 2014, damage occurs in almost every portion of the Gaza Strip.

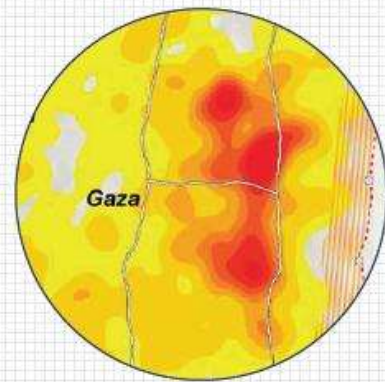

Epicepters of damage do appear to differ significantly from 2008-2009 compared to 2014. For example in 2008-2009 the Rafah border area adjoining Egypt was a prime focus of military activity and thus saw a large amount of destruction. While this area also saw destruction in 2014 it is markedly less intense than 2008-2009. In addition, while Beit Hanoun, Shejaiya, and other areas were heavily targeted in 2014 these same areas were relatively lightly damaged in 2008-2009.
